“We are absolutely delighted to have someone of Marsha’s extraordinary caliber join our marketing team,” said Keith Vieira, Senior Vice President and Director of Operations for Starwood in Hawaii and French Polynesia. “Anyone who knows her understands that despite her diminutive stature Marsha is a marketing giant. We are excited to have her working with us.”

“I’m thrilled to be joining a company with such an outstanding reputation in the travel industry – globally, nationally and right here in Hawaii,” said Wienert. “I’ve been fortunate to already have worked closely with a number of my new colleagues, and I am excited to be a part of such a great team.”

Wienert most recently served in the cabinet of former Hawaii governor Linda Lingle as the state’s first Tourism Liaison. There she worked with the Hawaii Tourism Authority, the visitor industry, state, county and federal government agencies, and the community on issues affecting tourism and its continued growth.”

Previously, Wienert served as Executive Director of the Maui Visitors Bureau, where she was instrumental in rebranding Maui. She initiated and oversaw all of Maui’s tourism marketing efforts, creating new synergy between travel partners, resorts, airlines and government. Under her leadership at the MVB, Maui won the coveted “Best Island in the World” award from the readers of Conde Nast Traveler nine years in a row and the “World’s Best Island” award from the readers of Travel & Leisure magazine for five years.

Earlier, Wienert served as Vice President for Marketing, Maui, for Amfac/JMB Hawaii; Director of Marketing for the Kaanapali Beach Resort Association; and Resort Marketing Manager for Wailea Development Company/Wailea Resort Company.

Thanks to her accomplishments in the more than two decades she has been involved in tourism marketing in Hawaii, Travel Agent magazine named her one of “The Most Powerful Women in Travel” seven years in a row. In 2002, the magazine’s editors voted her “U.S. Destination Person of the Year.”

Hyatt Regency Waikiki Beach Resort and Spa Launches $13 Million Renovation

Transformation will be in three phases

Hyatt Regency Waikiki Beach Resort and Spa announces the launch of an extensive $13 million resort-wide renovation. Continuing through September 2011, the transformation of Hyatt Regency Waikiki includes the complete renovation of the resort's entire third floor public areas and the introduction of two new restaurants, new poolside lounge and bar, a significantly upgraded pool deck, and an entirely new Regency Club product.

"This is a great moment in Hyatt Regency Waikiki's history. We are ready for this new development which will enhance the guest experience," says David Lewin, general manager at Hyatt Regency Waikiki Beach Resort and Spa.

The first phase of Hyatt Regency Waikiki's transformation began with Terrace Grille, which closed for construction on January 3. The anticipated unveiling of SHOR, an American Seafood Grill, is scheduled for late April 2011. Offering unparalleled ocean vistas, SHOR's innovative menu will feature the freshest catch in Waikiki, including exceptional sustainable fish and shellfish approved by the Seafood Watch Program, as well as flavorful cuts of meat and Hawaii's freshest produce. The space adjoining SHOR will become a brand new Regency Club, offering indoor/outdoor seating overlooking world famous Waikiki Beach for the exclusive use of Club members. During SHOR's design process, breakfast and lunch will be served at Hyatt Regency Waikiki's popular Ciao Mein restaurant, also located on the 3rd floor of Ewa Tower. Regency Club services will not be impacted during the renovation.

The second phase of the resort's renewal is estimated to begin on April 22. At this time, the current Ciao Mein restaurant and Elegant Dive pool bar will close, and construction will begin on two additional new outlets – Japengo and SWIM – expected to be completed in September. A highly anticipated addition to Waikiki Beach's dining and nightlife scene, the chic and sophisticated Japengo will feature modern Pacific Rim cuisine, sushi rolled-to-order and creative cocktails at a dynamic Sake Bar, and a lively, inviting ambiance. SWIM, the resort's new, full-service outdoor patio and poolside bar, will feature cocktails, light fare, and live local entertainment, complete with enviable views of Waikiki Beach's rolling waves and bustling Kalakaua Avenue. During the second design phase, guests will be invited to experience dining at the brand new SHOR restaurant, The Colony, for seafood, steak and sushi, and in-room dining. Additional dining options abound at the resort, including casual daytime fare at the resort's Hyatt on the Beach and several cafes and outlets in the on-site Pualeilani Atrium Shops.

Hyatt Regency Waikiki's transformation will be complete with the refurbishment of the swimming pool and surrounding pool deck, scheduled from early May through mid-August 2011.

Outrigger Hotels & Resorts Starts Off 2011 with Surge in Hawai'i Hotel Bookings

With many properties booked near capacity, Hawai'i travelers are strongly encouraged to book now for spring or summer getaways

As the weather cools down to unusually frigid temperatures across the continental United States, hotel bookings are heating up in Hawaii where travelers looking to escape the blustery weather are trading in their vacation time for an early dose of sand and sunshine.

With many Outrigger hotels and resort condominiums booked close to capacity during the first quarter of the year, such as recently transformed Outrigger Reef on the Beach in Waikiki, Outrigger Hotels & Resorts is strongly urging visitors planning to travel to Hawaii to make advance arrangements now for hotel accommodations.

"We are excited to see such a high volume of bookings so early in the year," said Rob Solomon, chief marketing office for Outrigger Enterprises Group. "Many of Outrigger Hotels & Resorts' properties are running at or near capacity throughout the first quarter, with only a limited number of rooms available in certain popular categories."

For travelers who are looking for a last-minute getaway, a number of Outrigger properties still have select availability in specific categories. On Oahu at the Outrigger Waikiki on the Beach, ocean view rooms are available starting at $239 per night. The OHANA Waikiki West still has availability in their kitchenette combo units for $169 per night. City view rooms at the OHANA Waikiki East and standard rooms at the OHANA Waikiki Malia are currently available at $99 and $89 per night, respectively.

For families planning spring break, Easter week, or summer holidays at Outrigger's hotels now is the time to reserve ahead. To check availability at any Outrigger hotel or resort condominium in Hawaii, visit www.Outrigger.com.

According to Solomon, "Our reservations and resort staff are working hard to accommodate as many requests as possible, but it is becoming increasingly difficult as our hotels and resort condominiums fill up. We expect this trend to continue throughout the remainder of the year, so for those planning to travel to the islands within the next few months, or anyone exploring summer vacation options, we encourage travelers to plan ahead to avoid disappointment and truly experience Hawaii the way that they've always dreamed."

For reservations and additional information, contact at Outrigger Hotels & Resorts toll-free at 1-866-956-4262 or www.Outrigger.com.

Aqua introduces new “beach boutique” concept

Aqua Hotels & Resorts is introducing a “beach boutique” concept to consumers in early 2011.

Known for carving out the boutique hotel niche in Hawaii several years ago, Aqua is further differentiating the brand by introducing a new “beach boutique” concept that consumers will see in ads and start to experience when checking in at several Aqua properties.

“We’re always listening to what our guests say and our research shows that they like staying in boutique hotels for the personal attention and they appreciate having beach items available when visiting Hawaii.” said Elizabeth Churchill, Aqua’s VP Sales & Marketing. “After all, does anyone have room to pack a couple of bulky beach towels or sand chairs in their ‘one’ allotted suitcase when space is needed for more important things?”

As a popular sun, sand and surf destination, Aqua’s creative team designed a bold new look for the guest amenities. The artsy-design suggests a stylish, tropical beach destination and the selection of colors perfectly emphasizes warmth and ‘aqua’.

Aqua’s new “beach boutique” amenity items will be rolling out throughout 2011. The first item for guests to enjoy at the beach is the plush, custom beach towel, followed by the sand chair and more.

“It’s very important to us that our guests are happy and comfortable when staying with Aqua,” added Churchill. “We monitor trends and regularly reach out to our customers seeking advice on how we can improve our product. Our new “beach boutique” amenities are a prime example of how we implement guest suggestions.”

Philip Rickard Honolulu Opens Hawaiian Heirloom Jewelry Museum

Philip Rickard Honolulu, leading manufacturer of Hawaiian Heirloom Jewelry, is pleased to announce the grand opening of the Hawaiian Heirloom Jewelry Museum. The museum is located on the 3rd floor of Royal Hawaiian Center in Building C and is adjacent to Rickard's flagship Factory store. The opening of the museum this year is especially significant as 2011 marks the company's 25 year anniversary at Royal Hawaiian Center.

The Hawaiian Heirloom Jewelry Museum chronicles the popular local jewelry's evolution in Hawaii and gives guests the opportunity to walk through a little-known chapter of Hawaiian history. Displays in the museum will explain how the jewelry, which started as a cottage industry in the 1800's and later became the gift of choice in the islands, has grown through many forms and technical transformations and how the Hawaiian monarchy, particularly Queen Liliuokalani, influenced this powerful island tradition.

The museum is open daily from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. with guided tours offered Monday through Friday at 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. Admission for self-guided tours is free. Admission for guided tours is $3 for adults, $1 for kamaaina, and free for children under the age of 12. Ocean conservation messages to reach thousands of island visitors

UH Sea Grant and partners share information on protection of sea turtles and coral reef ecosystems

Many travelers to O'ahu will be better reef visitors during their ocean adventures this year thanks to Aston Hotels & Resorts. In collaboration with University of Hawai'i Sea Grant College Program's Center for Sustainable Coastal Tourism, the Coral Reef Alliance, and NOAA Fisheries Service, information on good reef etiquette and responsible marine life viewing was incorporated into its 2011 Aloha Book.

Liz Foote, Hawai'i Field Manager, for the Coral Reef Alliance (CORAL) shares, "We at CORAL are thrilled that the Aston Aloha Book has prominently included useful reef etiquette information for visitors - in both English and Japanese - and applaud them for doing so. Including this information will not only encourage Hawai'i's visitors to follow more sustainable practices, but will empower them to look for these practices as modeled by the companies they patronize. This positive step taken by Aston will certainly serve as an example to other similar publications across the state."

Aston's free Aloha Book is distributed to all guest rooms at check-in and serves as a guide to the best culture, history, cuisine and attractions on each island. With more than 120,000 books distributed on O'ahu, these conservation messages are estimated to reach several hundred-thousand Aston guests during 2011.

"Aston's Aloha Book is excellent example of local Hawaiian stewardship and of the hotel's commitment and responsibility to raise awareness for the protection and sustainability of our local marine resources. Tourists come to experience all the unique qualities of Hawai'i, but don't always know how to best observe or appreciate our wildlife or sensitive reef ecosystems. This proactive effort on the part of Aston to educate its clientele should be applauded and further promoted throughout all the hotels and marine tour operators in Waikiki" noted Irene Kelly, Sea Turtle Recovery Coordinator for NOAA Fisheries Service.

For more information about the Aston Aloha Book, please contact Lisa Kimura at (808) 931-1482. To learn how to initiate a similar ocean awareness campaign at your organization, please contact Jennifer Barrett, Waikiki Coastal Coordinator for the UH Sea Grant Center for Sustainable Coastal Tourism at reefmail@hawaii.edu
